CAS slashes budget, closes local office

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Haliburton office of the Children's Aid Society is closing at the end of the month and two jobs are being lost in the county as part of a massive budget cut by the agency.

The society has been told by the province to cut $500,000 from its annual budget and last week the agency announced that 17 jobs will be cut in the three counties it serves; Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton.

"The government has lost all concerns about the quality of service we provide," Haliburton-Kawartha CAS executive director Bob Penny told The Times on Saturday. "They are concerned about bottom line financing and that is all."

"It's a very sad day. I wish I weren't here doing this. I don't enjoy it at all and I'm angry at the provincial government."

The agency's lease on office space in the Bishop Building in Haliburton village runs out at the end of this month and Penny says the CAS can not afford to operate its own office in the area.

Instead, the agency is negotiating to share space with another agency located in the village. Penny says the cuts also put an end to plans for opening an office in Minden.

"At this point, we're hoping to negotiate to bunk in with an existing agency in Haliburton, that's what we have to do. It would be difficult to slide down the road to Minden."

Currently the Haliburton office is staffed by two social workers, a supervisor and a sec-

School board hiring freeze lasts less than one meeting

by Susan Grober

Director of Education Brad Saunders has called for an immediate hiring freeze and a cancellation of all conferences to cut costs until the Haliburton County Board of Education completes its budget for next year.

But Saunders' announcement at last Tuesday's board meeting created a problem for trustees, who later decided to hire an educational assistant and increase the time of another educational assistant at Victoria Street Public School.

The struggle for local trustees has begun, as they face the daunting challenge of cutting costs while maintaining quality education for students.

The pressure is on to keep costs down, especially since Ontario Premier Bob Rae recently announced that provincial transfer payments to school boards will be increased by just one per cent this year, and two per cent for the next two years.

Trustee Len Salvatori said the board must start looking for areas where costs can be cut to trim its upcoming budget and keep any increase for local taxpayers to a bare minimum.

"We can't go up nine per cent, or eight per cent, or ten per cent anymore," he said. "The example's been set — we have to cut now. If we don't cut now, it'll be too late."

Saunders noted that the number of people receiving welfare assistance and unemployment insurance is steadily increasing.

"For the first time we're hearing stories of kids coming to school not properly fed or clothed, so clearly the recession has devastating effects in Haliburton County."

Saunders and representatives from other boards met with the minister and deputy minister of education on January 24.

Despite provincial cutbacks, Saunders said the ministry still intends to impose such costly initiatives as mandatory junior kindergarten for 1994 and de-streaming of Grade 9 for 1993.

"I have to say the minister was confronted by many people within our group," said Saunders. "But the government has their agenda, and the government plans to pursue their agenda."

Saunders said all board staff must be encouraged to get involved in cutting costs, including teachers, custodians, security staff and those who provide transportation.

"We'll be looking actively at any way we can economize," he said, adding that he has outlined 22 areas of spending he feels are worth exploring.

"We can't freeze conferences and hiring forever," he said. "But until the budget process is complete, those are two immediate steps

Council will meet with trustees to discuss schools

by Susan Grober

Minden council has asked trustees representing the municipality to attend a public meeting regarding the Haliburton County Board of Education's accommodation decision.

"We would like to find out more about the project, and see if there is a better alternative," Minden Reeve Bern Berry says of why the meeting has been proposed.

Many local people are riled over the board's decision to seek funding for construction of a new Kindergarten to Grade 6 school in Haliburton as part of a plan to alleviate overcrowding in the schools. The option was chosen in October, when trustees also voted to turn J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School to a Grade 7-9 facility for all students in the county.

As well as these long-term plans, the board voted to immediately initiate a $2.9 million addition at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden.

"There are ideas some people may have that they haven't had time to really think about," says Berry.

The board has already held two public meetings on the matter. The first was held in Minden at Archie Stouffer Elementary School on January 13, but Berry points out it wasn't publicized in the newspaper until that day.

"That forum was advertised on a Monday, and it was held on a Monday," he says. "That didn't give people much of an opportunity to really show their concerns, if they have any concerns."

The only school board members asked to attend the meeting are the three trustees representing Anson, Hindon and Minden: Wally Bunn, Wendy Ladurantaye, and Mary Anne Wilson.

"They do represent Anson, Hindon and Minden, so we just felt that's who we should speak to first," says Berry.

"We also want to get their feelings — and I understand their feelings are mixed," he said of the trustees.

When the vote was held, Wilson voted against the plan, Bunn voted for it, and Ladurantaye abstained from voting.

When contacted by the municipality, Wilson and Ladurantaye immediately said they will attend the meeting. Bunn said he must first check his schedule before confirming his attendance.

Local youth need activities, seniors tell OPP

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Senior citizens in Minden are not worried about being victims of crime, but they are concerned about the safety of local children.

That was the message received by members of Minden's community police committee when they met with 22 seniors at the Staunworth Court apartment building last Wednesday night.

The meeting was the first in a series of four focus groups the committee is holding with residents of the village to hear concerns and suggestions about police services.

Committee chairman Doug Campbell opened the meeting with a statement about the need for residents to become more involved in the policing of Minden.

"We need input from you. Give us your thoughts on what you see is needed," he said. Staunworth resident Eleanor Pye began the discussion by asking about the possibility of having a Block Parent program.

"I'm very concerned for children. We used to have Block Parents for children to go to if they were in distress," she said. "I would like to be able to help if a child needed me."

Constable Brian Dunham, who is one of Minden's community-based officers, told Pye he would see if a Block Parent program can be started in the village.

"Having a constable back on the beat is grand for us," said resident Al Stott. He asked how thinly spread the local OPP detachment is, trying to cover all of Haliburton County.

Campbell said one of the goals of the police committee is trying to help the police do their jobs more effectively. "Part of getting these focus groups together is helping the police spend time on what we, the citizens of the community, feel is a priority." While the local OPP detachment is doing a "first rate job", Campbell said they are operating under budget constraints which affect staffing levels.

Stott suggested that residents could help the police by volunteering to staff the downtown office.

Dunham said that in Barrie, where community policing has been in effect for several years, the police are running a trial program of having volunteers work in the community offices. If the program works, Dunham said it will probably be adapted in other areas. "It's not a bad idea," he said. "A lot of people would like to help out."

Those in attendance expressed concern about the lack of activities in the village geared toward young people, and the fact that many teenagers end up hanging around the street.

It was suggested that space should be found in the newly-expanded community centre where teenagers could gather and socialize under adult supervision, similar to the Soda Club in Stanhope Township, or become involved in a community sponsored youth group.

Another suggestion was that the village needs an outdoor skating rink where children could go because of the limited amount of time for free skating at the arena.

The seniors were concerned that, without anything constructive to do, young people will be tempted by drugs and alcohol.

Another concern brought forth at the meeting was traffic safety along Highway 35, especially the intersections with Main Street and South Water Street.

Campbell said the committee is gathering information for an application to the transportation ministry to have the speed limit on the portion of the highway which runs through the village reduced. He said the possibility of traffic lights at the two intersections is also being looked into to.

The discussion also focussed on the need for a noise control by-law in the municipality. Several of the seniors said there is a problem with people racing up and down the roads near the park and squealing tires.

Deputy-Reeve Lewis Stevens, who is council's representative on the police committee, said the township used to have a noise by-law but it was unenforceable. The responsibility for enforcing municipal by-laws falls on the township's by-law enforcement officer and the OPP have no jurisdiction to lay charges if by-laws are violated.

When asked about any concerns for their own safety, the seniors said they feel secure when walking around the village, and that they take precautions to lock their doors when they go out.

This Wednesday, the committee wants to meet with the parents of school-aged children, from Kindergarten to high school, to listen to their input about police service. The meeting is being held at the Minden municipal office at 7:30 p.m.

Future meetings will be held with business owners in the village and with local teenagers.

Once the meetings have been held, the committee will compile the information, identify priorities for police services and present their findings to the OPP and Minden council.

Minden council wants local appointed to health council

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council is sending a letter to Ontario Health Minister Frances Lankin asking that a local resident be appointed to one of the vacant seats on the Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Council.

The Health Council is an advisory body to the provincial government on health-related issues in the district and sponsored the directional plan on Haliburton County's health, housing and social service needs which was released last year.

The Health council is responsible for the counties of Haliburton, Victoria, Northumberland, Peterborough and the City of Peterborough. The membership on the council is appointed by the health minister with representation from each county according to population.

Haliburton County is supposed to have two representatives on the health council, but ever since Minden area resident Ray Cox retired from the council three years ago, Haliburton resident Carole Craigmyle has been the county's lone member.

At the most recent meeting of Minden council, Reeve Bern Berry suggested that a letter be sent to health minister Lankin asking that a Minden resident be appointed to fill the vacancy left by Cox's departure.

"There is a position there for an Anson, Hindon and Minden resident," said Berry. "There should be someone there, otherwise we can't get our concerns brought forth."

In an interview with The Times, Marshall Elliott, executive director of the Health Council, said there are actually three vacancies at the 16-member table and the Council is waiting for direction from the minister.

The ministry has informed all health councils in the province that 20 per cent of their membership should be elected municipal representatives. Elliott says that means there should be three elected municipal representatives on the Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Council.

But because the health (more on page 3)

CAS operations to be directed out of Lindsay

retary. After the cuts come into effect, one of the social worker positions will be transferred to Lindsay, the secretarial position will be eliminated and the supervisory position will be downgraded to a field worker. This will leave just two full-time positions in Haliburton County, and local operations will be directed by the Lindsay office.

"This will diminish the quality of service available in Haliburton County, I wouldn't argue that point," said Penny.

And although Haliburton County is not being spared any of the pain of the budget cuts, it is not the only area being affected.

In Peterborough, the agency will close the Burnham Street group home which will put nine people out of work, and three foster home support staff are also being laid off. Also, one of three top administrative jobs has been eliminated, leaving Penny and one other manager running the agency.

In order to cut wage costs, manager and administration have agreed to take 10 unpaid days a year, amounting to a 10 per cent pay cut, and the unionized employees have been asked to accept a similar cut in wages. If the union does not agree to take the unpaid days, Penny said there could be more lay-offs.

If all the measures announced by the CAS go into effect, and the union agrees to the total wage cut of $84,000, Penny says the 1992 budget should balance. The ministry will provide additional funding if the agency's caseload exceeds expectations.

Despite the cuts in local service, Penny says there is reason for optimism in Halibur-ton County. Consultant Nancy Draper is currently studying the proposed amalgamation of child services in the county, including the CAS, into a single agency.

Penny says the integration of existing services will be much more efficient and allow for increased and improved quality of care in Haliburton County.

Penny says the drastic measures the agency is being forced to take by the province's hard-line fiscal policies is an indication that the NDP government's social policy has failed.

"The NDP government is operation with zero priorities," he said. "This is a knee-jerk reaction. The government is in chaos, it doesn't know what it is doing. The NDP went into power claiming they had principles, but they've done nothing."

"They can no longer say they're carrying the faults of past governments. They've failed totally."

The CAS and the province have been locking horns over the agency's operation budget since six years ago when the CAS posted its first deficit. Although the government continued to clear the accumulated deficit, the base budget was not increased enough to meet costs. Last year the agency spent $1.7 million more than it's approved budget. In December the province agreed to increase the 1992 budget by 20 per cent to $7.2 million, but that is still $500,000 less than was spent in 1991.

A year ago, the board of directors threatened a mass resignation unless the province addressed the funding crisis, saying the agency was on the brink of bankruptcy. That action was avoided when the government provided enough money for operations to continue.

While the CAS board of directors has been able to exceed its budget in previous years to maintain service, Penny says that wasn't an option this year.

"This year is different because the province has said, clearly and up front, that there simply isn't going to be any more money, the message was clear," he said. "In the past we've been able to run a bluff and apply pressure for more money, our board has been very good at that, but I don't see any more money floating around out there this year."

Contacted on Friday, Dysart Reeve Chris Hodgson said he'd heard rumours of the CAS decision to close the Haliburton office, but had not had confirmation of the announcement.

"It's a disappointment to everyone involved, not just the staff but the families who depend on the Children's Aid Society for help," he said.

He said last month Dysart passed a resolution encouraging the CAS to keep the Haliburton office open and offered to find the agency a new location at a reduced rent.

Health council asks province for direction on representation council covers 58 different municipalities in four counties, the health council has asked for direction from the province on how to represent so many municipalities with only three seats.

Elliott says there are several options open to the Health Council including annually rotating positions throughout the municipalities, or expanding the number of seats on the council.

"Until we get some idea from the minister on how we should proceed with filling the vacancies, we're still in a holding pattern," he said.

Elliott says Minden council's belief that the second Haliburton County position on the council is set aside for Minden is inaccurate. He says the two local members on the council are meant to represent the entire county and there is no representation for specific towns or villages.

Once the council gets a response from the ministry on how to fill the vacancies, the three positions on the council will be filled, including a second representative from Haliburton County.

Then the seats are to be filled with municipal politicians, Elliott says Haliburton County will be asked to provide a councillor. If the ministry says to fill the seats without municipal representation, Elliott says "we will advertise tomorrow for a person from Haliburton County."

we can take that may help you in the short term."

However, later in the meeting, trustees voted to hire a full-time educational assistant, and to increase the time of a part-time educational assistant to full-time. Still, it wasn't without some debate.

Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson said both educational assistants are presently working with Victoria Street school students who have Down's Syndrome.

He said it would be difficult to not hire the one woman, Darlene Brown, who was selected to replace a previous educational assistant. "We'd not only be imposing a freeze, we'd be decreasing staff."

Saunders said the matter should be looked at before trustees make a decision. "We have provided educational assistant help in a ratio in excess of that of other boards."

Craig Pettit said trustees must keep the welfare of students in mind. "The minister, in his comments, said we still have to provide for our students."

Trustees voted to hire Brown, and then considered the matter of increasing the time of another educational assistant, Pauline Sharp.

Sharp is already working with a high needs student who has been attending school every other day, but is now able to attend school full-time.

Cheryl Murdoch asked if there is an alternative way to balance the duties performed by educational assistants already employed by the board to make up the extra time.

"I don't think so," said Robinson. "Educational assistants mostly work with very high needs kids. For extreme behavioural kids, or physically disabled kids who have to be toileted, there's got to be someone there for them. If the student has a convulsion, or has the need on the spot, it creates a wholly unacceptable situation."

Robinson also said educational assistants have different specialties, making it difficult to juggle their schedules.

Mary Anne Wilson asked whether the board could temporarily employ an educational assistant, and further investigate the matter before making a decision.

Robinson said Sharp is already working full-time at the school until the board gives its approval.

Salvatori added that Sharp is experienced in working with children who have Down's Syndrome, and has been very successful with that particular student. "They didn't even know if that kid could spend much time in school at all, and now he's in there every day."

Gayle Murphy expressed "grave concerns about what's going to happen to that child" if Sharp's time isn't increased, and said any change could have a negative impact on his progress.

Before trustees voted in favour of increasing Sharp's time, Robinson said: "I guess if I had my druthers, I'd say hire this woman and then have the hiring freeze. Then I'd like to do some pre-planning for other matters."

Trustees consider new logo to represent board

by Susan Grober

The Haliburton County Board of Education has been asked to consider adopting a new logo.

During last Tuesday's meeting, Director of Education Brad Saunders supported a change because he feels the current logo is not easily identifiable with Haliburton County.

The present logo depicts the lamp of learning, as well as the blue waters and green trees of the Haliburton Highlands.

Saunders said the recommended change isn't meant "to condemn the existing logo, but to come up with something that has a greater visual impact."

When advice was sought concerning a potential new board symbol, instructions given were:

- the primary colours of the current logo (blue and green) must be maintained;
- the logo must be readily identifiable; and
- the logo must connect the board visibly with children.

The logo suggested as a replacement is a bold illustration of a green stick figure standing behind a large blue letter H.

A number of trustees spoke out against the design.

Lloyd Griffiths said he wasn't aware that the board needs a new logo, and said the one recommended to the board looks like it's meant to represent a boys' camp.

Wayne Wood said the logo "looks like Gumby trying to go over the high jump."

Len Salvatori showed copies of the logo to 10 people, and he said none offered a favorable response.

He suggested that the board could have a student design a new logo.

Salvatori also expressed concern over spending money on a new logo during these recessionary times.

Cheryl Murdoch said she sees a need for a new logo, to ensure that others remember the local board.

"This may not be the logo that we want, but it wouldn't hurt to have a change," she said.

"We need all the help and support we can get."

Chairperson Nancy Stinson tabled the motion, so the board will discuss the matter at its next meeting.

HHSS principal hopes for semestered classes by 1993

by Susan Grober

The following matters were discussed during the January 28 meeting of the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Learning ABCs

A keyboarding program for elementary students may be implemented if trustees heed a request made by Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson.

"If we want all our students to be computer literate by the time they leave our school system, the first step is to teach them keyboarding as early as possible," said Robinson.

Starting at the Grade 3 level, the program would teach students keyboarding skills using small machines which sit on their desks. "These machines would be used because computer time is expensive," said Robinson.

The cost of implementing the program is $8,000, which includes equipment and staff development.

Robinson acknowledged that the board must cut costs to keep its budget down, but defended spending the money.

"I've been able to build it into my budget, which is actually lower than last year's budget.

BOE briefs

So I obviously feel it's high priority."

Trustees requested that the Education Committee consider the matter and make a recommendation to the board.

HHSS reorganization

The principal of Haliburton Highlands Secondary School is seeking approval to implement a semester program at the high school next year.

At last Tuesday's board meeting, trustees agreed to invite Principal Peter Forgrave to the next Education Committee meeting to discuss his wish for a reorganization of the school.

In a January 14 letter to Director of Education Brad Saunders, Forgrave said: "As you are only too well aware, one of the challenges of education is to ensure that the program offered in our schools is relevant to the needs of our students. When it becomes apparent that these needs are not being met, it then becomes necessary to incorporate change.

"At Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, it has become apparent that the organizational pattern of our school should be changed," wrote Forgrave. "As a result, I would like to begin planning and preparations in order to implement a fully semestered program for September 1993."

Forgrave asked to attend a meeting of the Education Committee "In order to gain the support and approval of our trustees and assist them in understanding the implications of this change..."

Fine paper recycling

The board will consider whether to continue participating in a fine paper recycling program.

When the board participated in the program last year, it paid a fee to recycle fine paper generated from its office and all the schools.

According to co-ordinator Louise Craig, the program will continue for another six months, and the cost is determined by the amount of paper an office produces on a monthly basis.

If a participant produces 1-5 bags of paper a month, the total cost for the six month term is $60. To dispose of 6-10 bags per month, the total for six months is $120, for 11-15 bags it is $180, and for 16-20 bags it's $240.

The fee includes the cost of storage and delivery to a fine paper recycling centre. Bags are to be disposed of in a bin placed in full view of Highway 35 on the north end of the Ministry of Natural Resources office parking lot in Minden.

The bin is kept locked, and a key is issued to each participant when a contract has been signed.

The board referred the matter to its Management Committee for consideration and recommendation.

Board policy

An ad hoc committee has been formed to update the board's policy manual.

Changes will be made because the existing manual is considered to be inconsistent in layout, and awkward to use.

"Our intent is not to change board policy," Director of Education Brad Saunders told trustees, "but to render the manual a little more comprehensible."

The committee consists of Chairperson Nancy Stinson, Vice-Chairperson Wally Bunn, Past-Chairperson Cheryl Murdoch, and Director of Education Brad Saunders.

All the good things in life are worth free gifts in Norland

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Rena Parno is sick and tired of listening to people complain.

She is so fed up with hearing about the recession and economic problems, she has decided to reward anyone who has good news.

"Tell me any good news, and I'll give you a free gift," she says. "I tired of listening to bad news."

Parno and her husband Lorne own the Norland Trading Post and she says her "good news" promotion is an attempt to get people thinking positively again.

A sign outside her store reads; "Good news pays off here, see Rena" and that message has drawn a lot of curious people into the store.

"The see the sign and want to come in and question me. A lot of them say there is not too much good news to tell, but it starts the conversation."

People have told her about going away for the weekend, families, birthdays and other events in their lives. "We talk about the stuff we used to talk about," says Parno, who is glad to have conversations which don't include the word "recession".

"Things aren't as bad as the media is making them out to be. This is my way to get people thinking positively again."

Despite the forecasts of doom and gloom, Parno says she sees signs that the economy is starting to turn around, but people are so busy complaining they don't realize it.

While attending the Gift Show at the International Centre in Mississauga last week, Parno said there was an excellent turn out and people were buying.

"When you see people buying and getting excited, it's easy to get excited yourself," she says.

Because of a lower dollar and reduced prices, Parno says shoppers can find great bargains right here in Canada. "You don't have to go to the States," she says. "You can swing a great deal up here."

Norland Trading Post owner Rena Parno shares some good news with Haliburton residents Barbara Fryer, centre, and Anne Schell, who were in the store last week shopping for dolls and stuffed animals.

NDP in crisis

"I've fallen and I can't get up."

That is how Stanhope Reeve Fred Gardner summed up Premier Bob Rae's televised address to the province on January 21, and last week we saw just how far the NDP government has fallen.

By forcing the Kawartha-Haliburton Children's Aid Society to spend $500,000 less this year than it spent last year, the government has shown just how desperate it is to cut spending.

The New Democrats have always claimed to be the party of conscience, dedicated to social issues and protection of "average citizens" and supporters of child welfare, health care reform and a social safety net for the poorer members of society.

Now, after just 16 months in power, Rae's government is obviously learning some hard lessons about the cost of a socially-conscious ideology. In last year's budget, the government decided to try to spend its way out of the recession with a list of job creation programs and capital projects saying it would rather help people than cut spending during the recession, and in doing so accepted a projected deficit of $10 billion.

This year the deficit is threatening to hit $14 billion and the government finds itself in a situation where it is unable to either help people or get its financial house in order.

The crisis facing the Children's Aid Society is just one example of how the government's about-face will hurt the people who need it most. In the three counties served by the agency, children who are in desperate need of protection and support will find longer waiting lists, less attention from over-worked society employees and a shortage of foster homes.

In Haliburton County, there will be just two full-time social workers trying to cope with an increasing case load without the administrative support of their own office, supervisor or clerical help. While all three counties will be affected by the society's cut-backs, Haliburton County has the least the spare in terms of reduced services.

In the Ontario government hopes to gain the confidence of the population, it should examine the efficiency of the bureaucracy, starting at the ministerial level, instead of cutting from the bottom.

Moving capital would give Winnipeg some hot air

Here's a notion to stir-fry in your brain pan as you hunker down and shiver through yet another Canuck winter: how about moving the nation's capital to....Winnipeg?

Put down that snowball, madame — it's not my idea. It belongs to Eric Kierans, venerable ex-politician and radio pundit. He floated the concept on the CBC national radio show Morningside back about Christmastime.

Well, when you think about it, it sort of makes sense. Winnipeg is a lot closer to the geographical bellybutton of the nation than Bytown-on-the-Rideau. And moving the capital is certainly in vogue, internationally. The Germans shut down East Berlin last year and future Russian politicians will be pointing their chauffeur-driven Ladas towards Minsk, not Moscow.

Plus — let's face it — this country needs a kind of coast-to-coast crosscheck right now. Something to shake us out of our separatist stupor; to wake us up out of our constitutional coma. We need a kind of national, head-clearing Participation project.

And what could be more intrinsically satisfying than a campaign to truck all those Ottawa windbags to Winnipeg?

Can't you just hear John Crosby shouting for a taxi at the corner of Portage and Main?

Can't you visualize Sheila Copps's burning crosses on the lawn of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange?

Mila Mulroney shopping at The Bay?

Brian tip-toeing through a late spring blizzard in his slip-on Gucci loafers?

It's a tempting thought, alright...but let's face it: it's just not fair.

Look at what those worthy Winnipeggers already have to put up with. Ferocious winters. Blitzkrieg invasions of mosquitoes each summer. Plus the lousiest downhill skiing this side of Death Valley.

Can we expect them to endure all that — and Michael Wilson too? I think not. I predict a populist backlash that will make the Winnipeg General strike of 1919 look like a Presbyterian Sunday school picnic. I foresee barricades

School decision not in Minden's favour

Editor:

This letter is written with regard to the decision by the Board of Education on the issue of school accommodation.

This topic has not been given enough fore-thought or input from the public in order to make a decision that will ultimately affect the whole County for such an extensive period of time. This decision, if left as it is, will not serve or satisfy both communities equally.

When people move to a district the educational facilities are of a main concern and usually a deciding factor when re-locating a family. Minden is not just a retirement community and requires young families to establish a lifestyle here to maintain the status quo. The students of high school age are now bussed to Haliburton and this is already a drawback. It is wrong to further decentralize the town of Minden by making a decision that will directly affect it's economic and social base. The Board of Education for Haliburton County may appear biased by expanding the options for the town of Haliburton at the cost of other communities.

It may have been feasible to the Board of Education whose head office is located in Haliburton along with the only high school and more than one elementary facility, to choose this as the sight for a Junior High School. However, the idea of a Junior High needs to be reconsidered.

To base a deciding factor on a monetary savings may be noble in this time of economic uncertainty, however, in the long run the cost to our children may be much greater.

When it comes to the issue of busing students from Minden to Haliburton, the Board had best be sure that the existing problems have been solved before it so rashly offers to expand! As the parent of a high-school student being transported from Minden to Haliburton there are already problems of late buses, overloading on some, and mechanical failure. Add to this the harassment that some students experience on any bus system and what parent would willingly expose their children to more of this atmosphere? Many of the high school students opt for driving themselves or accepting rides with friends to avoid taking the bus for the above reasons. This increases the risk for all concerned.

The families and youth of this community have a right to adequate facilities and quality of education in their home town, especially when the service already exists!

They also have the right to expect the Board of Education to uphold previous promises made with regard to the proposed expansion of Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

This promise did not include a trade off that in order to accommodate the younger grades, the older ones would be transported out. NO one in this community is going to like or accept the busing of the grades 7 & 8 to another facility any more than they wanted to accept busing the primary grades to the old IGA store!

The decision of 4 years ago was made, grudgingly, on the basis of a promise. Well....the promise is now due and at no time did it come open for re-negotiation!

P.S. Too bad this wasn't an issue at re-election time!

Christian values being eroded from our society

Editor:

Religion is being removed from our lives.

The United States and Canada used to be Christian countries, yet slowly step by step, religion is being removed from our lives in order not to offend immigrants who might not be Christians.

No Lord's prayer in school, gradual removal of mentioning God in governmental functions, where will it end?

If the Christian religion is offensive for some immigrants, why did they come to this country in the first place? Secondly, they are not being forced to convert to Christianity, so how are their rights being violated? When you think about it, is there anything in Christian teachings which would be detrimental to anyone's moral standings? I think not, and do not believe that a prayer or the mention of God would harm anyone.

Also, some of our traditions that have been in existence from day one (such as one of the largest police departments in Canada, Toronto I'm referring to) have to cancel out the swearing of allegiance to the Queen.

There are many more instances such as altering or eliminating Christmas Carols at functions open to the general public. I could go on and on about the erosion of Canadian traditions.

Editor,

I am 17 years old and I have friends over my age, ranging from 18 - 24 years old.

I feel that the Carnival this year was a success, but I found one flaw. There was a teen dance on Friday 24th. Then on Saturday the 25th, there was a dance for age of majority, so I have to go to a dance that a lot of younger kids go to and my older friends sit at home, and then the next night all of my friends go to another dance, so I have to sit at home. So we are separated. I do feel that when tickets for alcohol are bought, age cards should be shown. The problem of us younger kids drinking shouldn't be a problem because constantly, Kinsman wander around pick up full ashtrays, empty beer bottles and etc., and are able to watch. I don't feel I should be separated when I am a responsible young adult.

Thank You
Tina Gilbert

Invasion of MPs would cause popular revolt

on the Trans Canada; floating mines on the Red and the Assiniboine Rivers...manifestos demanding full autonomy and language fights for the duchies of Steinbach, Rosenfeld, Gimli and St. Boniface.

I envisage commando death squads of fanatical North Enders all disguised in Larry Zolf masks. I see them invading the House of Commons to lob netfuls of dead Winnipeg Goldeye at the fear-frozen MPs sitting rigidly below.

And suppose Winnipeggers win? Suppose the politicians, faced with such implacable western wrath, cave in and rescind the order to make Winnipeg the new capital — what then?

Do we try to move it to Moose Jaw? Flin Flon? Pond Inlet? Tempting. But don't forget there are people in Pond Inlet too. Law-abiding people with a right to peace and harmony.

In fact, that's probably why they live in Pond Inlet. Up there, they don't have to worry about politicians popping out from behind a pingoe to shake their mitten and kiss their kids and promise a free snowmobile in every garage if only they'll remember to vote for him next election.

NO, if you think it through, I believe you'll agree the best solution is to leave our federal politicians right where they are. After all, Ottawa's used to them.

Besides, there's a real bonus for the rest of us if we stick with the status quo:

Sending our politicians to Ottawa is a sure-fire way to get them out of town.

Crimestoppers to help MNR combat illegal activities

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Ministry of Natural Resources has joined the Crimestoppers program help fight illegal hunting and fishing activities.

The new partnership was announced last week in Lindsay when MNR and Crimestoppers representatives met to unveil the program.

People can now call the Crimestoppers toll-free number, which has been operating in Haliburton County since last summer, and anonymously report infractions of the Game and Fish

Act or destruction of natural habitat. These tips will be passed along to MNR conservation officers for investigation and, if the information leads to an arrest, the caller is eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000.

Len Bailey, vice-chairman of the Crimestoppers provincial advisory board, said the program was started as a pilot project in Sault Ste. Marie a year ago and in the first 3 weeks of operation resulted in tips on 40 illegally shot animals.

Crimestoppers is a non-profit company which operates in 800 locations around the world. Haliburton County is covered under Lindsay and Area Crimestoppers. People with information about criminal activities can call the toll-free number and, without revealing their identity, pass the information on to the police. If an arrest is made, the caller is given a cash reward which is collected at a specified drop-off point so he never has to come into contact with the authorities.

MNR's involvement in the program will operate the same way, but will deal with illegal hunting, fishing or habitat destruction.

Stan Fleming, the fish and wildlife supervisor at the ministry's Minden office was at last Thursday's meeting and says he sees the involvement with Crimestoppers as a positive step.

"It gives an outlet for average citizens to report illegal activities," he said. "People will be more inclined to give us tips."

Fleming says people should be reporting any activity they feel is illegal such as hunting out of season, hunting on Sundays, and unapproved shoreline work.

"The program can only help fish and game populations," he said. "We're looking forward to working with Crimestoppers. It will increase our ability to catch some of the poachers out there."

He says the program might also have a preventative benefit because potential poachers will be less likely to commit an offense if they know their likelihood of being caught is increased.

The number for the Lindsay and Area Crimestoppers is 1-800-563-8477.

Helping to announce the natural resources ministry's involvement in the Crimestoppers program were, from left, Minden coordinator Stan Fleming, Matt Murphy of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, MNR provincial coordinator Dave Ferguson, Crimestopper vice-chairman Len Bailey, Lindsay Crimestoppers chairman Sharon Hatwell, Lindsay police coordinator Bill Woolridge and Jim Milford the coordinator for the Lindsay MNR office. The new program will begin immediately.

Laxton reeve questions committee about landfill

by Jerry Grozelle

The County of Victoria has officially taken over the responsibility for the operation of waste management facilities within its borders.

But the municipalities in which the landfill operations exist will continue to operate those facilities until the end of 1992. During this one-year period, the County will rely on the recommendations of the Waste Management Technical Advisory Committee (WMTAC) to draft its policy for the operation of the landfill sites.

As Reeve of Laxton, Digby and Longford Townships, Doug Horton is a member of County Council. He has been appointed to the WMTAC and in that capacity, he has raised several questions that relate to the landfill site in Laxton Township. Horton sent a letter to Committee Chairman Terry Staples, who is the Reeve of Manvers Township. In his letter, Reeve Horton raised several concerns that he feels should be addressed. They include:

- What security will be provided for the attendant, who has no on-site telephone and must collect cash from some of the facility users?

- What is expected of the attendant when confronted by irate users or an outright refusal to pay?

- What about the added burden on Municipal staff in handling the landfill charge accounts?

- Why are private collection services charged while municipal ones are not?

- How is the attendant supposed to discern the difference between five bags of residential and five bags of

Somerville decides not to charge lot levies

by Jerry Grozelle

Somerville Township Council used an unusual method of deciding how much the township would charge under the Development Charges Act, and ended up charging nothing.

Each member of council wrote the figure he or she felt would be appropriate on a piece of paper. The slips of paper were then collected and the figures were read aloud by Reeve John Huke. One member of council suggested a figure of $650; two members preferred a figure of $500 and the other two were in favour of not charging anything.

After some discussion, and a couple of defeated motions for fees of $250 and $150, Councillor Clayton Cameron made a motion that Somerville's share of the development charges be zero. The motion was seconded by Councillor Jack MacDonald and Councillor Cameron requested a recorded vote. Joining Cameron and MacDonald with a yes vote to ensure the passing of the motion was Councillor Gord Carr.

Deputy-Reeve Sue Douglas and Reeve John Huke voted against the motion.

During the discussion, it was pointed out that only a small portion of any charge by the Municipality could be used to offset costs of administration which are incurred by the Township. Councillor Cameron argued that any benefit the Township may derive wouldn't be worth the cost of administration. The Development Charges Act was designed to replace the Township's Impost Fee of $90, which was discontinued in November of 1991.

By contrast, Laxton Digby and Longford Council set its development charge at $400 while Ennismore, a township along the western edge of Peterborough County, has set its development charge at $2,432. Somerville Council waived the development charge in an effort to encourage development within the township.

Development charges, or lot levies as they were formerly called, are the funds municipalities collect from new development.

Laxton discusses planning with county

by Jerry Grozelle

Representatives from the Victoria County Planning Department met with members of Laxton, Digby and Longford council at the January 21 meeting in Norland.

County Senior Planner Terry Edwards and Area Planner Janice Badgley outlined the structure and chain of responsibilities of the department. Among the County Planning Department's responsibilities, Edwards pointed out, are administering and ensuring conformity to the County's Official Plan. Edwards and Badgley learned that the relationship between the County Planning Department and the Municipality has not always been a happy one.

"It always seemed to be an adversarial relationship," Reeve Doug Horton told them, adding that he would prefer a change to one of co-operation and good communication. The concern regarding the Industrial Park designation within the County's Official Plan was raised. The visitors were informed that the Municipality is eager to encourage any industrial development almost anywhere within its three-township boundaries. Reeve Horton also stated that there is a vast difference in the geography between the southern and northern parts of the County and that the Planning Act should have provisions to address the fact that the northern townships may have different needs from those in the south and central areas.

"There should be more 'mays' and fewer 'shalls' (within the wording of the County Planning Act)," Reeve Horton suggested, Edwards admitted that "there is only one Planning Act" and added that the County must work within the framework of Provincial guidelines. But he said that his department was willing to co-operate with the Municipality by offering advice on how to accomplish its goals.

"We would like to be of service and assistance," he said. "I would like to keep the lines of communication open."

Reeve Horton expressed the concern that "we're over-governed and the power is shifting further away from the people."

Dog Tags

Dog owners within the Townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford will now be able to purchase their dog tags for 1992. The tags were ordered in November but were late arriving. The fees are $5 for a male or spayed female or $11 for a non-spayed female. Those prices are in effect until the end of February, when the fee will increase by $1.

No Support

Councillor Lynn Peel introduced a motion suggesting that the Municipality follow the lead of the County and not provide grant money for special interest groups for 1992. None of the other members of council were willing to second the motion, thereby defeating it.

School study

A committee consisting of Councillors Vernon LeCraw and John Macklem has been appointed to study the future of the Norland Public School, which will close its doors for the last time in June. The committee will investigate, among other things, the School Board's intentions regarding the buildings and property, operating costs and types of uses the property could realistically be put to. The committee will present its findings to Council for consideration at a future meeting.

WMTAC members to submit concerns about landfill sites commercial garbage?

- Has, and if not, can, a simple reconciliation form be designed and provided to simplify and standardize the procedure?

- Have any plans been made to implement recycling?

- How are trailer parks considered re: the annual assessment? Will the Municipality be charged $5 per site and the operator of the park be allowed to deposit five bags of garbage per unit at the landfill site?

- Many people in the Municipality take turns going to the dump. Others help out disabled residents or neighbours who don't have cars. Wouldn't a charge for more than five bags in those cases be unfair?

- Will the Municipality be charged for garbage from Township parks, buildings etc. as most weeks the five-bag maximum will be exceeded?

- Notice of the new regulations and information such as spring clean-up and hazardous waste days in local newspapers is of no use to seasonal residents because in most cases those residents don't receive the papers or would not receive them in time to act. Since more than half of the residents within the Municipality are seasonal, how would those residents be informed?

Horton's correspondence was acknowledged at the most recent meeting of the WMTAC and the rest of the committee members were invited to follow his example by submitting their concerns in writing as well.

Members of the 1st Minden Scout Group presented appreciation awards to Marg Fielding, of General Lee's, and Don Crowe, of Kawartha Dairy, last Tuesday in recognition of the continuous support the businesses have provided.

Businesses honoured by scouts

by Susan Grober

Local scouts took time out recently to show their appreciation to two local businesses who have offered support to the group.

The 1st Minden Scout Group presented appreciation awards to the Kawartha Dairy and General Lee's on Tuesday in recognition of their continuous support and generous donations of food and drink on 'Apple Day', the group's largest annual event.

The awards were presented to Don Crowe, from Kawartha Dairy, and to Marg Fielding, from General Lee's, by Group Committee Chairman Ron MacKenzie.

The group has two major fundraising events each year. Trees for Canada raised money, not only for the local scouting movement, but also to less fortunate people in underdeveloped countries.

Each October the group members polish numerous bushels of apples, which they sell to raise funds. "All the boys partake in this wholeheartedly, and I think they deserve a lot of credit," said McGuire.

The 1st Minden Scout Group consists of a Scout Troup led by Brian Hamilton, Dave Wright and Joe Kegal; a Cub Pack led by Paul Heffer, Thelda McGuire, Clyde Russell and JoAnne Howard; and a Beaver Colony led by Gary Kenney, Rick Mansfield, Janet Hirstwood and Terry Clarke. Group Committee Chairman is Ron MacKenzie, Treasurer is Clyde Russell, and Secretary is Thelda McGuire.

Thanks to the many volunteered hours dedicated to the scouting movement by the aforementioned leaders, the young lads of our community (approximately 60 boys) can participate in a very exciting, adventuresome, creative and rewarding program.

This continuous support of volunteer leaders, parents, local businesses and service groups has certainly been appreciated and most necessary to the continued success of the scouting movement in the Minden area.

Gil Parcell draws top spot

Times's cartoonist Gil Parcell, at left, took top honours in the 1991 Ontario community newspaper awards, capturing first place in the Local Cartoon category. His winning submission (Inset) dealt with the transfer of criminal court days from Minden to Lindsay, and lampooned the inconvenience of the decision to witnesses and the police. This is the second straight year that a Times cartoonist has won the provincial award. Last year, former cartoonist Anker Odum took top spot with his cartoon about the closure of the Norland Post Office. The Echo took first place in its general excellence division and also won an award for writing about the arts.

Women play vital role in environmental movement

"Women know when something is spilled, someone has to clean it up."

This simple homily expresses the fact that in the male-dominated macho world of aggressive military activity and the global marketplace, the environment is exploited with little thought of the long-term costs and consequences. As a group, women are far more sensitive than are men to the environmental problems that they see afflicting their children, the poor, workers and people in developing nations.

Like many minority groups, women, who are a majority of the population, have to struggle to achieve proportionate numbers at any level of government. Often the competitive, individualistic, aggressive nature of the political game is alien and repulsive to women (and many men). As well, running for elective office even at the municipal level is expensive and for many people but especially women, the risk of piling up expenses in a losing campaign is simply too great a hazard. Thus, it's not an accident that we are disproportionately "represented" by lawyers and businesspeople.

The "traditional" role of women provides a perspective that stresses nurturing, family, co-operation, sharing, concern for long-term effects of current actions. These values are at the core of the environmental movement so we ignore them at our eco-peril.

It is not, I believe, an accident or coincidence that women, so vastly under represented in government and business, play vital and visible roles in the environment movement. In part it's because women are again more willing to take poor salaries or work for nothing. But the main reason is that women understand in a profound way that their children's future must not be compromised by immediate demands of the economy, profit or power.

Reflections

by David Suzuki

The number of articulate, informed and dedicated women in Canada's environmental movement is long and impressive as this partial list shows: Jean Harding (Newfoundland and Labrador Conservation Society), Diane Griffin (Island Nature Trust), Susan Holtz (Ecology Action Network), Janice Harvey (Conservation Council of N.B.), Janine Ferretti (Pollution Probe), Pat Adams (probe International), Diane Pachal (Alberta Wilderness Association), Adrienne Carr (Western Canada Wilderness Committee), Sue Cameron (World Home Environmentalists' Network), Vicki Husband (Sierra Club), Colleen McCrory (Valhalla Society), Tara Cullis (Our Common Ground).

I have been surprised to receive a sympathetic hearing from unexpected places. I was once on a panel on forestry that included Adam Zimmerman, the formidable CEO of Noranda Forests. After receiving a severe tongue lashing from him, I was approached by a woman who offered this consolation: "I'm an environmentalist too, and I agree with everything you say." I learned later that she was Janet Zimmerman, Adam's wife. Since then, I have become acquainted with two of his three daughters who are also ardent environmentalists.

A few years ago, I was at London's Heathrow Airport when a bomb scare forced the evacuation of all buildings. As I stood on the curb, I recognized the eminent former MP and Liberal cabinet member, Mitchell Sharpe, and engaged him in conversation. I soon launched into my standard discussion about the need to stop our mindless worship of steady growth in consumption and the economy. Sharpe shook his head in disbelief and replied "I understand what you're saying is an end to all PROGRESS". As I disagreed with his equation of growth with progress, his wife cut in: "You know, Mitchell, he's right. We use far more of everything today. We don't need it all and it can't go on."

In the late '80s, British Columbians were fiercely debating the future of an old-growth forest in the Stein Valley. A coalition of environmentalists and aboriginal people opposed the plan to log the valley by Fletcher Challenge, the multinational New Zealand company. I was invited to address a conference of Pacific Rim business people in Sydney, Australia, and at a lunch, found myself seated next to Sir Ronald Trotter, chairman of Fletcher Challenge. When I realized who he was, I soon got into a disagreement over the Stein Valley. To my surprise, his wife joined in and told me: "You keep telling him. These men should listen to you. I agree with what your saying."

Women are the critical element in the environmental movement both for their perspective and their lack of vested interests in the current power structures.

Two hat-tricks give Home a 6-4 win over Westside

A scoreless first period of hockey was followed by a ten goal outburst in the second frame during the opening game of the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League Monday evening. In the second period, Home Hardware charged from a one goal deficit to take 6-4 victory over Westside Jug City.

Carey Gilligan and Ken Barry did all the damage for Home, scoring three goals each. One of Gilligan's marker was unassisted. Six other members of the team shared in the scoring honours. Picking up assists were Gary Harrison, Louie Reynolds, and Glen Hall, each with a pair, and singles from John Ballantyne, Ben Manuge and Dave Rogers.

Westside led off the scoring in the second period, and for a time held a 3-1 edge over Home Hardware, before falling victim to their onslaught. Jeff Howe, Ron May, Mike Keaney and Scott Danilkoscored for Westside. May and Keaney also picked up two assists with singles going to Steve Crowe, Ed Gibbons and Lorne Burgess.

Terry Crowe was in nets for Home while Ron Telford was the gatekeeper at the other end of the ice.

It was a tighter game between Sid Stamp Fuels and Kountry Double Catering. The two teams traded single goals during the first period and again in the opening minutes of the second. Stamp then broke loose and scored two more goals to claim a 4-2 win.

Dave Pettes led the way for Sid Stamp Fuels scoring the opening goal and the go-ahead marker. Larry Sawyer added an unassisted goal while Doug Schell scored a single. Assists were credited to Joachian Matysek with two and singles from Ted Vasey, Shawn Gilligan and Paul Walker.

Tom Haley and Scott Hamilton scored the Double D markers. Assists went to Haley, Andy McKenzie and Harold Cowen.

Kevin Smith was between the pipes for Stamps while Duane Lennie was the Double D netminder.

Westside goaltender Ron Telford steers aside a Home Hardware shot during the opening game of the Men's Recreational Hockey League Monday evening. Home went on to claim a 6-4 win.

Redmen take TASS 7-5

A two goal effort by Jason Billings, including an unassisted insurance marker in the third period, helped to give the HHSS Redmen a 7-5 win over Thomas A. Stewart Secondary School of Peterborough in league hockey play. The game was played Wednesday at the Dysart Arena, the first home contest since the Christmas break.

The teams traded goals in the first period with Peterborough opening the scoring less than a minute into the game. Jamie Dollo responded two minutes later scoring at the 12:29 mark on a pass from Jason Billings. Peterborough went ahead again at 11:46.

Greg Stamp evened the score at 6:08 with assists going to Billings and Jeff Black. Bill Bradley added another marker at the 5:36 point with assists going to Mark and Kevin Morissette to end the first period.

The second period belonged to the Redmen. Jeff Black scored at 11:36, assisted by Jason Billings and Stamp; Mark Morissette scored at 11:09 with assists from Andy Billings and Bradley; and Jason Billings notched what proved to be the winning goal at 7:31 with assists from Mark Morissette and Dollo.

The Peterborough team attempted a come-back in the final frame with a strong three goal response. All of the markers came off the stick of Sean Hazeldine, but despite the hat-trick, the team came up short of overtaking the Redmen. Jason Billings added his insurance goal at 7:02, an unassisted effort, to secure the Redmen win.

Todd McCracken was in net for the Redmen.

The regular season is rapidly coming to a close for the Redmen. Tuesday they travel to Lindsay to take on LCVI while Wednesday evening they host Fenelon Falls at the Dysart arena. Game time is 7:30. After that match there is only one more game for the team before the play-offs begin. On February 11 they travel to Peterborough to play Adam Scott.

"Simply The Best"

"BUY SOMETHING"

Our preference, of course, would be that you buy a quality re-conditioned used vehicle from Keaney Plymouth Chrysler. But, if that's not in your cards, buy a microwave. A basset hound. Theatre tickets. A tootsie roll. Something. Because if we all wait for the recession to be officially declared over to start spending again, the problem will simply keep feeding itself. As for us, we're making a start.

minutes of the second period were enough to give Hartwick Construction the boost to defeat The Times 7-5. Dave Dollo, Jeff Stamp and Sid Mackeigan scored a pair of goals each in the Hartwick win, with an unidentified player picking up the other single. One of Stamp's goals was unassisted.

Assisting on the scoring were Stamp with four, Dollo, Rob Crowe, Mackeigan and Colin Wilson with singles.

Ivan Ingram was the power-house for The Times, notching four of the teams five markers. Doug Allison scored the other marker for the team, an unassisted effort. Assists were credited to Craig Crowe with three, Dan Read and Irwin Asbell with singles. Andrew Burk was in net for Times while Rob Crowe worked the crease for Hartwick.

All Star Game

The division of talent was a little lopsided for the all-star game played Saturday night (January 25) as part of the Minden Winter Carnival. With players drawn from all six teams in the Men's Recreational Hockey League, the Sharks defeated the Devils by a 10-2 score.

Dave Hartwick led the attack for the Sharks with a three goal effort. Tom Haley scored a pair for the winners with singles coming off the sticks of Tim Hunter, Scot Hamilton, Mike Keaney, Jeff Howe (unassisted), and Andy Campbell. Assists were credited to Howe with three, Hamilton Rick Beene and Dave Schell with a pair each and singles from Hunter, Corey Walker, Keaney, Kim Colliss Paul Walker, Barry Shaw, Haley, and Jerry Campbell. Ron Telford and Kevin Smith were the Sharks netminders.

Sid Mackeigan and Dave Rogers scored for the Devils. Assists went to Jeff Stamp, Kevin Hamilton, Dean Hewitt and Derek Allison. Newfer Burk, Terry Crowe and Rob Crowe shared the netminding duties.

There are six more evenings of regular season play before the play-offs begin. The action on the ice reflects the increasing intensity of the season. Tonight, Hartwick takes on Double D at 8 p.m., Times plays Home at 9 p.m., and Westside plays Stamps at 10 p.m. Admission to the games is free.

Wednesday afternoon we had a surprise game of shuffleboard. The board was rescued from storage by Greg Sawyer who helped us play a mixed game. It was nice to have the men joining in. Of course, some players were better than others but we all enjoyed ourselves.

After the game, I had two friends from Haliburton come to visit. Grace Sepes came to visit her sister, Gladys Kirkpatrick, and she brought Eva Howe and Doris MacElwain to see me. I was so happy to have them and thank them for coming.

I have also been adopted by Brandon Jarvis as her grandmother. I am very happy about this.

Due to health reasons, I have been unable to attend Thursday and Friday events.

Thursday was the weekly tea party. It was prepared and served by the West Guilford Brethren Church. Thank you ladies who participated in this event. The residents appreciate it greatly.

Friday was Happy Hour and I understand the entertainment was provided by Carmen Peters, Lloyd Madill, Don White and Bill Payne who we thank greatly, as well as those faithful volunteers.

Congratulations to Len Hamilton on his birthday of January 21. Good wishes and good health.

Road signs serve franco population

Over the past few days, a number of you have expressed dissatisfaction with the installation of bilingual signs along some provincial highways. This concern has been expressed to the Ministry of Transportation, the Premier's Office and my own Constituency Office.

Here are the facts on this issue.

In 1986, all three parties in the Ontario Legislature unanimously passed the French Language Services Act. That Act recognizes the importance of providing provincial (not municipal) government services in French in certain designated areas of the province. Those areas are where 10 per cent of the population is French-speaking.

As part of providing French language services, the Ontario Ministry of Transportation has been installing bilingual highway signs only on the provincial highways in these designated areas. Some of those areas where the signs are in place include Welland, Port Colborne and Windsor, as well as large parts of Northern Ontario. As well, provincial highways in Toronto, Mississauga and Hamilton are also in the designated areas. Victoria-Haliburton is not a designated area and there will be no changes to highway signs here.

The cost of changing the Ministry's operating budget ($4-million for signs) and has been staggered over a number of years. Already, 70 per cent of the signs have been changed over. To date there has not been any additional cost to the Ministry to install bilingual signs over English-only signs. This is because they have been installed only as the signs needed to be replaced anyway, i.e. replacing old, dilapidated or damaged signs.

By continuing to provide government services in the French language, in French-speaking areas, (there are over half a million French-speaking Ontarians) we are recognizing the contribution of the cultural heritage of Franco-Ontarians, a large and historically important part of our diverse population.

On another subject, your provincial government recently announced the public consultation process. I would like to let you know what this entails and invite you to participate.

We are taking a different approach to the process of government. Instead of imposing policy on the province with little input from the people, we are actively seeking public input into a number of social and economic initiatives. This is a chance to have your say on a variety of subjects, before Legislation is in place. We need the interest and advice of the people of Ontario to come up with Legislation that will truly reflect the values and hopes of the people of this province

The 1992 Public Consultations include:

- *The Ontario Budget for 1992
- *On Ontario Investment Program
- *An Industrial Strategy
- *An New Skills Training System.
- *Fair Taxes
- *Agricultural Land Use Review.
- *Managing Ontario's Forests.
- *Long Term Care For Seniors and the Physically

Disabled.

- *Labour Relations Reform.

- *Waste Reduction Initiatives.

- *A Social Charter for Canada.

Parliament set to go back to work

The House of Commons is in recess after a very productive fall session. There was far more cooperation between Members of all parties than in the past, and we were able to make excellent progress on important bills. Parliament worked the way Canadians want it to work — through negotiation and co-operation.

Since the current session began last May, the government introduced 54 bills, of which 28 are now law and three are now in the Senate. Twenty three bills are still before the House at various stages of debate.

Our economic plan seeks to build a better and more secure future for all Canadians. As part of that plan, rules were changed to promote more competition in the financial services sector, giving business and consumers more choice and better service.

Measures to deal with the deficit through spending restraint were passed. A bill requiring net proceeds of the GST only be used for servicing and paying down the debt is now in committee.

When the House returns in February, a bill to set a limit on how much money

Report from Ottawa

from the office of Bill Scott, MP

Ottawa may spend will be introduced.

In terms of public security, or what the media have called our "law and order agenda", we have made good progress. We passed a new gun control act and changed the Young Offenders Act.

Still before the House are a new extradition law to ensure Canada does not become a haven for fugitives fleeing justice in their own country, a tougher parole law and a new sexual assault law.

We have to protect the environment if we are to keep the economy strong and preserve our health and way of life. When Parliament returns, a bill creating a powerful new environmental review process will be ready for final debate.

Other environment bills to be passed include new laws on shipping dangerous goods, the protection of northern lakes and rivers and illegal trade in wild plants, endangered species and animal parts.

Parliament also passed bills honoring our international commitments, such as a law to deal with money laundering. A bill to let us impose economic sanctions on Haiti and Yugoslavia was introduced just before we left.

Parliament was productive, and energy was focused more on fair and reasoned debate than in the past. There were isolated incidents that everyone regrets, and there is room for improvement in the months ahead.

When we return in February, we will pick up on the items still before Parliament. And of course, expect a new budget in or around the third week of February.

Jacknives and Inkwells

by Kenneth C. Hone

This is the fifth installment of Ken Hone's account of going to school in a one room schoolhouse in Stanhope during the 1950s and 1960s.

Chapter 4 - The Teachers

Throughout our stay at S.S. #3, we had eight teachers. In order they were, Mrs. Silverthorne, Miss Black, Miss Brooks, Mr. Coghill, Miss Brooks came back to us as Mrs. Curry for two years, Mr. Richardson and Mrs. Warder. Like any other such group, some were good and some were frankly bad. Some were well liked and some were despised. It's odd, but both of the men teachers were not very good, while the women were uniformly good. It's odd as well that the men were rather well liked and a couple of the best women teachers weren't liked at all.

When you taught at our school, you taught at the bottom of the barrel. Our grade two teacher, Miss Black, was paid two thousand dollars a year and had a grade twelve education. Even taking into consideration that a loaf of bread back then was twenty-five cents and My Dad thought he had really arrived when he got up to six thousand a year to support a family, it seems teachers were pretty undervalued. It seems ludicrous today that a person was qualified to teach eight grades with less than a high school matriculation.

Often the teachers would board at the Coulter's farm just up the road from the school, especially if the teacher was a woman. Things had changed greatly from the turn of the century when a school marm was told what books were proper for her to read, when she might go out, and church was compulsory, but I get the feeling young female teachers were still made to toe the line in a lot of subtle ways.

I often hear to day that teachers have a tough time handling classes of thirty kids, but those kids are all in one grade. What must it have been like to handle twenty four children in eight separate classes with eight separate teaching plans? Actually the teacher depended to a large extent on a couple of the steadier, older pupils to help out with the younger ones.

I guess I enjoyed most of my teachers, but Mr. Coghill stands out in my mind as the most unpleasant, and Mr. Richardson as the most pleasant, even though I failed with both of these teachers.

Mr. Coghill was a deadly shot with a piece of chalk. He would be standing at the head of the class talking away and spot someone at the back of the room whispering or perhaps just daydreaming. Without the slightest hesitation, without a break in his patter, he would point out the felon to the rest of the class and a heft a piece of chalk in the palm of his hand. Those in the know knew what was coming and could hardly hold in the giggles, but the first the miscreant knew of the impending doom was a sharp crack on the side of the head. It was no big deal, just a way of getting your attention and everybody got it at least once a week.

I remember once getting put across Mr. Coghill's knee (thankfully, he didn't dare pull my pants down) and getting about fifteen with the blackboard pointer across my buttocks. That evening at home I guess I couldn't hide the fact that I was hobbling and in great pain and my parents found out what happened. Dad paid Mr. Coghill an after hours visit and apparently told him that if he touched me one more time, he would get a thrashing of the kind he had given me. I had no more trouble that year with Mr. Coghill.

I remember 'Chuck' Richardson more fondly. He was young, handsome and 'cool'. The older kids actually called him Chuck and he liked it. Actually he was pretty much a kid himself. He had no authority because he regarded himself as one of us. He needed no authority because he had no intention of taking on the responsibilities of a master.

Mr. Richardson could do everything well. In art class we did very little because he would take the whole class covering the entire blackboard with amazing landscapes in all the primary colours, explaining, as he went, the techniques of shading, optical illusion, the trick of mixing the chalk colours on the board.

In history we hardly cracked a book because he spun marvellous tales right off the top of his head about the wonders of the ancient world, complete with the latest theories on the development of mankind and the advances of archaeology.

One Halloween, Mr. Richardson had us decorate the whole school as it had never been done before. The basement became a tomb of horrors with cobwebs and spiders and creepy crawlies. Upstairs we had a fortune teller, bobbing for apples and all sorts of other things, and along with all this, our parents were invited. The whole community attended and everybody said Mr. Richardson was the best teacher we ever had.

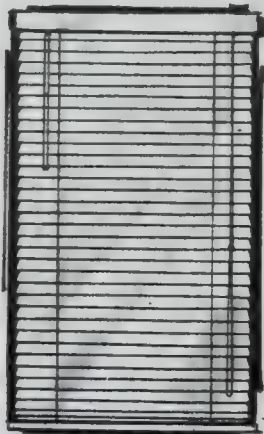

That year, the Christmas concert was to be a major off, off Broadway extravaganza. None of the old skits and games would do, but Mr. Richardson had us doing rock and roll numbers and up to date plays with lavish costumes and we worked on it for a month and a half. Poor Chuck, predictably it all came undone a week before the concert. The vision didn't come off. Neither we, nor I suspect he, were up to it. That year we barely managed to put on a concert at all. Gayla Davis didn't get to lip-synch "Rockin' Robin" and the main play became a threadbare little skit. We all felt bad, but perhaps Chuck Richardson felt worst of all. I didn't pass that spring and neither did some others. Even those who always passed with sickeningly high marks didn't do as well that year, but we all missed Chuck the next year.

For grade eight we had Mrs. Warder. She brought with her daughter Jean and her youngest son Henry. It was Mrs. Warder who was the teacher when the affair of the bathrooms and the strapping of Jimmy took place. It was unfortunate, but these events sort of took the blush off the rose for us with Mrs. Warder. She was a kind woman and, because she boarded across the road from my house and because I was doing as badly in math that year as I did every year, she had me over to Mrs. Oliver's house for an hour each evening for a month or so and tutored me. It was, as I said, grade eight. Do or die, so to speak, and her kindness paid off. I still didn't do very well, but I think I passed arithmetic with about fifty nine percent and this got me through grade eight and off to high school. I'm a little ashamed to say that I never let on to Jimmy that I had a secret liaison with Mrs. Warder.

Sometimes our teacher would be ill or away, and then we had what we called 'substitute teachers'. 'Baby-sitters' would have been a better word as they didn't really teach. Mostly in this regard I remember Mrs. Gartshore, Mrs. Welch and Mrs. Adamson. Now that I think of it, I believe these three women were usually our Sunday school teachers as well.

If the regular teachers had some minimum teaching requirements, I don't think these ladies had any. They would simply tell us to do what we usually did, and we would pull their legs terribly (with straight faces) and tell them that we were doing basically nothing and they would believe us. I remember we would get them playing the piano and spend hours just singing.

Once in a while the teacher would invite someone from the community to come in and speak to us. Usually this was someone who was a lay preacher and would talk religion at us and then give us a free little New Testament. I still have a couple of those with the Union Jack in the front and the words to The Maple Leaf Forever.

Sometimes the chief of the Minden detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police would come and give us a talk. Pretty heavy stuff. He'd tell us about bicycle safety and then pass his handcuffs and a dirty and offensive looking leather blackjack filled with buckshot which gave us food for thought. When the chief was gone, us boys would swagger around and make out like we were really unimpressed and slander the law. It was widely repeated how a certain police chief had been caught pulling over women for speeding and then promising to let them off if they would 'come across' for him. I don't know if this was ever a true story or not, but it certainly got lots of play.

All in all I would have to say that the teachers we had in that one room school were good teachers. They were paid poorly and had a heavy workload. On top of that, they were expected to do a lot of extracurricular work with the kids and I don't think any of them did less than was expected of them, and most did more.

CHACE looking for continued support in 1992

Is it too late to wish everyone a Happy New Year? Since this is my first opportunity since my December article, I'm hoping not! I'd like to extend my best to everyone and my hopes that you enjoy each day as it presents itself—unique and special in its own way and full of wonders that we need only take time to see.

It seems to me that many people like the thought of a new year — a clean slate — to renew old dreams and desires and of course, initiate new habits or replace less desirable ones.

What kinds of resolutions have you made for yourself? If any of your wishes included giving a little more to help others, or to volunteering a little more to your community, then I'd like to suggest a variety of ways in which you could accomplish this task:

Make a charitable donation to your favorite cause. Even $10 or $20 can go a long way and you'll receive a receipt for income tax purposes.

Participate with your purchasing power in fund raising events and raffles. Who knows? You may even win.

Help out in a most valuable way by volunteering your time on a Board of Directors or at a committee level. This work is mutually beneficial and a lot of fun, too.

Now more than ever, C.H.A.C.E. is an agency that needs your valuable support. 1992 marks the second year that our funding ministry, based on fiscal restraints of its own, has been unable to fund all of our operating costs. C.H.A.C.E. is far too important to the families who benefit from our support and enrichment to have its services threatened. There is no better time to show how strongly you feel about our organization!

We currently have a terrific way to show your support of C.H.A.C.E. — it's our WE LOVE CLIFFORD RAFFLE (you know, that big, lovable, red dog). For a dollar a ticket, you can take your chance on a plush red Clifford Dog, a Clifford Book and Hand Puppet or a Clifford Book and Tape. Try your luck and help support C.H.A.C.E.!

C.H.A.C.E. is also thrilled to announce that we had a visit from TV Ontario's Polkaroo from the Polka Dot Door! I hope you saw our ads and were able to pop into our centres to enjoy such a great treat for our kids.

In my last article I promised to detail for you some programming ideas. A great hit at both our Resource Centres at this time of year is the making of bird feeders. They are easy (and inexpensive) and provide immeasurable pleasure! Listed below are a couple of ideas:

Take a 1L milk or juice carton and staple the pouring spout closed. Poke a hole through this part in order to slip a string through (for tying it to the tree). Next you need to cut a rectangular hole into one side — start approximately half way down and stop about two inches (oops!! 4 1/2 cm) from the bottom. This provides a nice resting spot for the birds while they poke their heads onto eat. Decorate your carton any way you choose, fill it with seed and enjoy to your hearts content.

Spread a clean, paint-stirring stick with peanut butter. Many have holes already drilled into them. Press bird seed onto the peanut butter and string it up...so simple yet provides so much pleasure! (You can do the same with a Styrofoam cup; just poke a hole in the top of the cup and tie a knot in the end of the string before you insert it through the cup. Pine cones work well, too).

Our Winter 1992, Newsletter features a terrific "Bird House Preference Chart" as well as a plan for building a wooden bird house, thanks to our Newsletter Editor (Extraordinaire), Lynn Thompson.

Our Newsletter is only one of many ways we attempt to support our community. We have, of course, our Day Care Centre in Minden, a Private Home Daycare Network serving the entire County, our Resource Centre in Minden and our Haliburton Resource Centre. The Head Office for our agency is also located in the Haliburton Resource Centre so if you're ever so inclined to act on any of those resolutions, please feel free to stop in and see me any time or call me at 457-2989.

The drop-in resource centres in Minden and Haliburton villages will be open for visitors during the Minden Sled Dog Derby and the Haliburton Winter Carnival on Saturday, Feb. 15. Come in to warm up and enjoy a cup of hot chocolate. In Minden, the drop-in centre is located at the rear of the Sears building on Bobcaygeon Road and in Haliburton the drop-in centre is located at the rear of Halco Plaza.

Diet Tips:

1. If no one sees you eat it, it has no calories.

2. If you drink a diet soda with a candy bar they cancel each other.

3. Calories don't count if you eat with someone and you both eat the same amount.

4. Food taken for medicinal purpose does not count. This includes toast, hot chocolate, brandy and chocolate cake.

5. If you fatten up everyone around you, you'll look thinner.

6. Snacks consumed at a movie do not count as they are part of the entertainment as popcorn with butter, red licorice or M&Ms.

The Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit has announced the return of Toddler Clinics.

A child's ability to communicate is built upon being able to hear, see and speak. It is important to check your child's speech, hearing, and vision to make sure they are developing as they should. If problems are found early enough, treatment can be started.

Starting in February and running through March, parents can make an appointment to bring their 3 to 3 1/2-year-old in to have their speech, hearing, vision checked. The clinic takes no longer than 30 minutes of a parent's time.

1129 Cadets active this winter

The members of the 1129 Army Cadet Corps are having a busy and interesting winter training.

On January 18, the first half of the Corps spent the weekend at Branch 129 getting instruction in First Aid training. The remaining members will get the same instruction on March 28 and 29, beginning at 2130 hours on March 28. Captain Denis Allaire is fully qualified now to teach and give the exams in First Aid.

On February 29, the members will enjoy a social day of darts, snooker, shuffleboard and films at Branch 129.

On February 3, a few Cadets will write their Gold Star tests at Haliburton.

Six Cadets will compete in Campbellford on February 15 in the rifle competition. On the same day, other members will form an honour guard for the Carnival Queen in Haliburton.

A Militia Regiment will attend at the Haliburton Legion on March 7 to instruct the Cadet Corps in camouflage, grenades and locket launches. Bush manoeuvres will be taught the same weekend. The time is set for 9 p.m.

Canine Night will be held on March 9 when two OPP Officers will attend at the Haliburton Legion at 7 p.m. with a trained German Shepherd and a Labrador dog to instruct the Cadet Corps in drug awareness. All cadet parents are invited and each cadet is asked to bring a friend. Don't miss this exciting and education event.

These are some of the activities in citizenship and leadership happening in the Cadet Corps. A large number of the members have expressed their intent to attend summer camps.

Because of the majority coming from outlying areas, the Haliburton Legion has chartered a bus to bring members in to Branch 129. When Branch 636 Minden found out about the bus, they presented Branch 129 with a cheque for $1000 to help offset expenses. This is just another fine example of the comradeship, the caring and sharing of these two Branches and the good which can be accomplished by working together.
